Course content

The course focuses on national and international features of states criminal jurisdiction. The course includes the development of international criminal law, core concepts (i.e. international crimes, grave breaches of international humanitarian law, individual criminal responsibility, state responsibility for violations of international law) and criminal proceedings at international courts (the International Criminal Court - ICC, the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia - ICTY), hybrid (national and international) courts (Sierra Leone, Cambodia) and national courts (Iraq, Belgium). The course is on an advanced level compared to similar elements in the previous mandatory course of the law program, and students will to a greater extent find and evaluate legal sources as well as scholarly debate.

Learning outcomes

Knowledge and understanding

Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be able to:

- demonstrate in-depth knowledge and understanding of international criminal law, in particular when it comes to concepts international crimes and mechanisms for enforcement, alternative mechanisms and international criminal procedure.

Skills and abilities

Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be able to:

- apply and interpret legal norms in the various areas of the course,
- demonstrate an in-depth ability to systematically, critically and independently identify, formulate and

- analyse human rights issues, and demonstrate an in-depth ability to examine, clearly explain and discuss one's conclusions in English, orally and in writing.

Judgement and approach

Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be able to:

- assess international criminal law with academic, extra-legal and societal perspectives, including societal factors which have contributed to the formation of the norms relevant for the course.

Education

The language of instruction is English. The course starts with an introductory lecture, the aim of which is to provide general orientation within the subject area. Following this introduction, each component of the course is then discussed separately. Each subject area may consist of lectures as well as seminars.

During the course, students will make an inquiry into a concrete legal problem. This inquiry is presented in written form as an essay. There will also be a moot court exercise, which consists of written motions as well as an oral trial hearing.

Participation in the moot court and seminars is mandatory. Participation in other parts of the course is voluntary. The course director may grant a general exemption from the attendance requirement in accordance with the regulations for examinations adopted by the Faculty of Law's education committee. Such a general exemption cannot extend to the moot court. Exemptions are otherwise solely granted if the student has a lawful excuse, in which case the student should complete a pedagogically equivalent assignment as compensation for his or her absence. No exemption from attendance will be granted for the moot court. More details about the scope and structure of the course are found in the course description.

Forms of examination

The course's learning outcomes are assessed through the individual essay, participation at the seminars, written submissions as well as participation in the oral main proceedings of the moot court. In order to pass the course, students must pass all course components. The final grade in the course is weighted as follows: 40% from the individual essay, 30% from the participation at the seminars, 20% from the written submissions and 10% from the moot court. More details about how grades are weighted are also given in the course description.

In order to pass the course, students must achieve all intended learning outcomes. The language of examination is English.

The final course grade is set using the following scale: Pass with Distinction (AB), Pass with Credit (BA), Pass (B) or Fail (U).

Students are entitled upon request to receive grades according to the seven-point ECTS scale. The request is to be submitted by the student a week before the examination in a manner that has been established by the Department of Law. The grade according to the seven-point scale is then valid instead of the regular grade. Passing grades according to the seven-point scale are: A (Excellent), B (Very Good), C (Good), D (Satisfactory) and E (Adequate). Failing grades are Fx (Inadequate) or F (Totally Inadequate).

A student with a certificate of special pedagogical support issued by Stockholm University has the right to alternative/accommodated forms of examination in accordance with the certificate.
