Course content

This course introduces the work of an international human rights lawyer; it focuses on how to make use of the various international fora to promote respect for international human rights standards. As such, it will cover various aspects of what an international human rights lawyer needs to know and what they can do, including:

- An introduction to the main elements of the human rights regime
- The UN mechanisms for the protection of human rights: reporting and shadow reporting to the Treaty Monitoring Bodies and the Human Rights Council, inquiries and special rapporteurs and individual complaints.
- The regional mechanisms, including those in Europe, Africa and the Americas. Naturally, there will be an emphasis on the Council of Europe mechanisms and the European Convention of Human Rights.
- The relevance of comparative jurisprudence and standards.
- The hard law and soft law standards.
- The approach to arguing human rights standards – the purposive approach, ensuring rights are practical and effective, ensuring that standards reflect modern day conditions.

Learning outcomes

Knowledge and understanding
Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be able to:
– demonstrate an understanding of the knowledge needed for and the approach to be adopted by a lawyer who wishes to hold him or herself out to be an international human rights practitioner
- identify relevant legal questions pertaining to human rights.

Skills and abilities
Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be able to:
- demonstrate the ability to work on cases for individual complainants and also assist NGOs and civil society bodies in promoting human rights, or to work for governmental agencies in responding to such activities,
- apply the legal rules discussed in the course,
- demonstrate the ability to independently, critically and systematically analyse legal issues and legal argumentation based on the course material.

Judgement and approach
Upon completion of the course, students are expected to be able to:
- Critically assess, evaluate and present different solutions for various legal matters concerning the field of human rights, in English, both orally and in writing, independently and in groups.

Education

Instruction comprises 2 weeks of full-time studies and consists of lectures and seminars. A more detailed description of the course content is available in the course description and course schedule. The language of instruction is English

Forms of examination

The course is examined through:
- Active participation in the compulsory elements of the course,
- A written take home examination.

Failure to hand in the take-home exam within the given timeframe will automatically result in a failing grade. All of the course's learning outcomes must be met and all activities passed in order to pass the course. The language of examination is English.

Students who fail the regular examination are given the opportunity for re-examination. Students who have passed are not entitled to undergo re-examination for higher grades. Students who are failed twice by the same examiner have the right to demand a different examiner when doing additional re-examinations. This does not however apply if there are specific reasons for not appointing a different examiner.

The grading scale for the course is as follows: Pass (G) or Fail (U).

A student with a certificate of special pedagogical support issued by Stockholm University has the right to alternative/accommodated forms of examination in accordance with the certificate.

Misc

Completed course requirements are valid for two years. This also applies to students who de-register from the course through early withdrawal.

The course requirements in effect at the time of the student's first registration on the course may be completed within two years. After two years, the course requirements included in the most recently revised syllabus will apply.

Entry into force
These provisions will apply as of 10 June 2019.
